We live alone in our cluttered psyches, possessed by our entrenched beliefs, our fatuous desires, our endless contradictions - and like it or not we have to put up with this in one another.

~A.S.A. Harrison

As for herself, every morning on waking she gives thanks to the God she doesn't disbelieve in. Although she can't credit him with saving her, she needs this outlet for her gratitude.

~A.S.A. Harrison

Life has a way of taking its toll on the person you thought you were.

~A.S.A. Harrison

There are lots of reasons why a woman stays with a man, even when she's given up on changing him and can predict with certainty the shape that the rest of her life with him is going to take.

~A.S.A. Harrison

It's a known fact that in certain contexts people's great strengths become their epic failings.

~A.S.A. Harrison

We are all mediums for our own basic truths. All we really have in life is the primal force that moves us through our days - our unvarnished, untutored, ever-present, inborn agency.

~A.S.A. Harrison

In spite of what anyone says it's women who make the rules.

~A.S.A. Harrison

You will not be the same person coming out of a relationship as you were going into it.

~A.S.A. Harrison

Autumn can be glorious but menacing too - the long shadows, brisk winds, scurrying leaves, impending frost.

~A.S.A. Harrison

In asserting that people don't change, what she means is that they don't change for the better. Whereas changing for the worse, that goes without saying.
