

African Spir Quotes

Men, War, Moral, Trying, Character, Justice, Liberty, May, Humanity, Self, Sacrifice, World, Principles, Mean, People, Real, Thinking, Morality, Country,

Use

The most sacred duty, the supreme and urgent work, is to deliver humanity from the malediction of Cain - fratricidal war.

~African Spir

Only a moral education based on free inner discipline can bring to bear a salutary action and lead to a true morality.

~African Spir

There is a radical dualism between the empirical nature of man and its moral nature.

~African Spir

The realization of justice is, in the actual state of things, a matter of life or death for society and for civilisation itself.

~African Spir

To sacrifice the moral to the physical, as is done in these days, is to sacrifice reality for a shadow.

~African Spir

In this world everything that is won to the ideal, is an eternal (or imperishable, - "impérissable", Fr.) good.

~African Spir

The precept to worship God 'in spirit and in truth' recommend to worship him as an inward and moral force, without physical attributes and with no relation to fears and egoist wishes.

~African Spir

Whoever has recognized the vainglory of individuality will not attach any store ("n'attachera aucun prix", Fr.) to fame. The only one thing which is really valuable, it is to do good.

~African Spir

The supreme blossoming of character lies (or reside) in renunciation (or renouncement) and abnegation of self ("abnÃ©gation de soi", Fr.)

~African Spir

Arbitrariness and true liberty are as distinct from each other that the empirical nature is distinct from the higher nature of man.

~African Spir

The first principle from which stems the moral of about all people at all time; it is summarized in this precept: Love thy neighbour as thyself, and: do as you would be done by.

~African Spir

There is only one thing in the world that is really valuable, it is to do good.

~African Spir

The moral improvement demands an evolution leading to a higher consciousness.

~African Spir

It depends on ourselves to be to each others, either a blessing or a torment.

~African Spir

We can, following the exemple of Kant, consider the moral development and improvement of men, as the supreme goal of human evolution.

~African Spir

It is not on the ruin of liberty that we may (in the future... - "pourra", Fr.) build justice.

~African Spir

In the actual state of social relationships, the forms ("formes", Fr.) of politeness are necessary as a substitute to benevolence.

~African Spir

Possessions of this world have not been for the exclusive use by such or such category of individuals.

~African Spir

To reform society, and with it humanity, there is only one mean; to transform the mentality of men, to direct them ("les orienter", Fr.) in a new spirit.

~African Spir

A good man ("un homme de bien", Fr.) never wholly perishes, the best part of his being outlives (or survives) in eternity.

~African Spir

What is the use for a man to have at his disposal a large field of action, if within himself he remains confined to the narrow limits of his individuality.

~African Spir

As long as men will not be freed from their errors and delusions, humanity will not be able to go towards ("marcher vers", Fr.) the accomplishment of its true destinies.

~African Spir

Place (or put) a spider on top of a mountain, it will only try to catch flies; alas, they are many those who, in the figurative meaning, have spider's eyes.

~African Spir

The well understood equity as well as interest of society demand that we work on much more to prevent crime and offenses than to punish them.

~African Spir

Related Links:

- Men Quotes
- War Quotes
- Moral Quotes
- Trying Quotes
- Character Quotes
- Justice Quotes
- Liberty Quotes
- May Quotes
- Humanity Quotes
- Self Quotes
- Sacrifice Quotes
- World Quotes
- Principles Quotes
- Mean Quotes
- People Quotes
- Real Quotes
- Thinking Quotes
- Morality Quotes
- Country Quotes
- Use Quotes