The law change during the Bush administration gave the Department of Health and Human Services a central role in relocating Central American minors in the United States.

~Alan Bersin

People should remember that Mexican migration is now at a net negative. More Mexicans are leaving through deportation and voluntary return than are entering the United States legally and illegally.

~Alan Bersin

We should be wary, particularly with our closest friends and allies, of breaking down the trust and confidence that lie at the foundation of relationships.

Walls and barriers alone are insufficient to insure security.

~Alan Bersin

If you build a 50-foot wall, you'll soon be confronted with a 51-foot ladder.

~Alan Bersin

Our security in a global world must be looked at on a continental basis.

~Alan Bersin

In today's digital online world, those who don't share information will be isolated and left behind.

~Alan Bersin

The work the Mexicans are doing in terms of migration control on Mexico's southern border is crucial to our own border security.

~Alan Bersin

The image and the costs of a Berlin-like wall or a Great Wall of China is something that the American people have not accepted to date.
