I think I liked you better when you were a raging idiot.

~Alethea Kontis

Sometimes 'Hmm' is the wisest thing to say.

~Alethea Kontis

The curse of an interesting life: there are either very good times or very bad times.

~Alethea Kontis

Everything in the world was about creativity: belief and creation. Storytelling was the essence of both.

~Alethea Kontis

Dream of me, my beloved family, happy in my plundering and adventuring, for when the waves rock me to sleep tonight, I will be dreaming of you.

~Alethea Kontis

All of us heal in time. The strongest are born again. We only keep the scars we choose to keep.

~Alethea Kontis

She needed him to keep her sane, to make her laugh, to feel complete

~Alethea Kontis

First time's a fluke; second time's a coincidence," said Velius. "Third time's tradition," finished Erik.

~Alethea Kontis

Gifts, like words, carried with them a great deal of power. They bestowed good fortune just as powerfully as they could curse; they could bind people together or tear them apart.

~Alethea Kontis

Your fey cousin here has the miraculous ability to hold his liquor--and mine, and yours, and the king's, and half the country's, I expect.

~Alethea Kontis

Do you still look at each other like you once did, back at the beginning of the story when everything was a question you were too afraid to find the answer to?

~Alethea Kontis

Quit dwelling on other people's stories and make up some of your own.

~Alethea Kontis

He could not change the man he had been, but these hands would make him the man he could be

~Alethea Kontis

If you want anything to work, Sunday, you're going to have to believe it

~Alethea Kontis

Normal is all relative.

~Alethea Kontis

Everything to lose, nothing to lose, someone's taken it, or you've lost it.

~Alethea Kontis

Kindred's tale is a romantic, mature, and lyrical collage of heaven, hell, and a magical royal legend. The combination is divinelyâ€”and demonicallyâ€”inspired.

~Alethea Kontis

Somethings were meant to be and somethings were just meant to be good stories

~Alethea Kontis

If you did not indulge in fantasies, how else would you know if you were living an interesting life?

~Alethea Kontis

It can't be 'true' love without the truth

~Alethea Kontis

May we all be doomed to a happy life.

~Alethea Kontis

Mama says I spend too much time in little fantasy worlds and not enough in this one.

~Alethea Kontis

We are all fools blessed with the knowledge that certain events will come to pass no matter what path we take to get there. The wise ones follow their angels while they may.

~Alethea Kontis

For some heroes, nothing is impossible
