You learn not to mourn every little thing out here, or you'd never, ever stop grieving.

~Alexandra Fuller

How you see a country depends on whether you are driving through it, or live in it. How you see a country depends on whether or not you can leave it, if you have to.

~Alexandra Fuller

I am becoming increasingly difficult to please as a reader, but I adore being surprised by a really wonderful book, written by someone I've never heard of before.

~Alexandra Fuller

This is not a full circle. It's life carrying on. It's the next breath we all take. It's the choice we make to get on with it.

~Alexandra Fuller

I love my mother so much, because I see the whole of her.

~Alexandra Fuller

What is important is the story. Because when we are all dust and teeth and kicked-up bits of skin - when we're dancing with our own skeletons - our words might be all that's left of us.

~Alexandra Fuller

It's a long day's drive any way you look at it. With a man who has taken your sins - real and imagined - and stitched them onto the sackcloth of his own soul, it is endless.

~Alexandra Fuller

I always knew mum loved me - tough, look-after-yourself love, as if she knew she wouldn't always be there.

~Alexandra Fuller

I had the constitution of a missionary.

~Alexandra Fuller

In ways I don't entirely have the words for an experience, thought or a lesson isn't real for me until I've written down.

~Alexandra Fuller

In general, I almost always watch foreign films.

~Alexandra Fuller

I listen mostly to classical music.
