I always say the things you're not supposed to.

~Alice Eve

Usually, if you're buried alive, that's gonna be the last time that happens, isn't it?

~Alice Eve

What you're seeing, certainly on Instagram, is not real, not a reflection of real life, not an interaction.

~Alice Eve

I'm not big on awareness about what's going on online but usually if you do too much online stuff then you usually bump into something that hurts.

~Alice Eve

The Chinese say that having two homes is the way to madness. I'm not mad, but I definitely wish Hollywood would move to Trafalgar Square. But the life of an actor is a life of movement, isn't it?

~Alice Eve

Being protective is important.

~Alice Eve

I can't say that I know the lexicon as intimately as a lot of people, so I may be unworthy of being called a Trekkie. That would be doing a disservice to the people who really are Trekkies.

~Alice Eve

I love to hang out with boys - I've got brothers - but I'm a girl's girl, in all the ways you can be girlie. Nails and chats and gossip magazines and reality TV and pop culture.

~Alice Eve

I wish that I wasn't such an odd mixture. I wish I was serious, but I do love high heels and romantic comedies: being in them and watching them.

~Alice Eve

Men are more visual creatures and rate women based on looks. We like to laugh and be shown a good time. I've never rated anyone on looks.

~Alice Eve

I always think that if I'm with somebody, they're better than me. That's why I love them. They're amazing.

~Alice Eve

Women are less aesthetic than men.

~Alice Eve

Working with the likes of Joseph Fiennes was just an incredible experience.

~Alice Eve

I think I'm probably quite geeky in a lot of ways. I'm pretty into books, kind of obsessive about that.

~Alice Eve

I did literature at university, so I had a real relationship with poetry, but they don't make many films about the world of a poet.

~Alice Eve

I sort of lived half my life in California, half in England, so I am, I suppose, a little bit American.

~Alice Eve

People are going so far as to kill themselves over the things that happen online.
