We are all mistaken sometimes; sometimes we do wrong things, things that have bad consequences. But it does not mean we are evil, or that we cannot be trusted ever afterward.

~Alison Croggon

There is no shame in not knowing something. The shame is in not being willing to learn.

~Alison Croggon

While the heart beats, hope lingers.

~Alison Croggon

And all meet in singing, which braids together the different knowings into a wide and subtle music, the music of living.

~Alison Croggon

Joy bubbles on a fountain of doubt.

~Alison Croggon

There is a great force in renunciation of power that those who are blinded by the lust for domination cannot understand because those who truly love do not desire power.

~Alison Croggon

There is no shame in loving: it is the sign of a generous heart, and pain the price of an open soul.

~Alison Croggon

There come a few times in a person's life where there is a clear choice," Cadvan said. "The difference between one person and another is how they meet that choice.

~Alison Croggon

Your future is uncertain, and I can tell you nothing that can help you.

You are singular and dangerous, and so it is that you are sought by both the Dark and the Light.

~Alison Croggon

I would rather die than stay there." "Well, you might die.

~Alison Croggon

Old friend,' said Cadvan, filling another glass for himself and sniffing its rich smell. 'If we do not trust one another, we are already defeated.

~Alison Croggon

It is far better to put away fear than to be driven by it.

~Alison Croggon

Light blooms the brighter in the darkest places.

~Alison Croggon

Many forgotten things live still in children's tales.

~Alison Croggon

The only good thing about being frightened half to death, she thought, is that it makes me forget all about being seasick.

~Alison Croggon

I shall never complain of the tedium of the city again.

~Alison Croggon

Elednor,' he said, 'Elednor, why have you betrayed me? Come back to me. Come back to were you belong. I alone need you.

~Alison Croggon

And then like thunder broke the frost, The chill wall fell, and morrowless Immortal maid and man embraced, Their light and shadow mingling.

~Alison Croggon

It is only the darkness in our own hearts that will defeat us, in the end.

~Alison Croggon

Drunk with beauty, I tore down Armfuls of blossoms. How desolate the marred sky!

~Alison Croggon

Triple tongued is triple named

~Alison Croggon

I tried to become a hawk, it didn't work. I think I got -stuck

~Alison Croggon

It is good to dress in fair clothes to dine with friends. It honors your host, if you are a guest; and your guest if you are a host. And both adorn the feast, and so celebrate the gifts of the world.

~Alison Croggon

Not even I can see all ends, but I have been in this world long enough to know that a choice is not choice and breeds slow ills, even were it done for the highest reasons.
