This is the way the world ends; not with a bang or a whimper, but with zombies breaking down the back door.

~Amanda Hocking

Mark my words, Princess," Loki said. "One day, you'll be madly in love with me.

~Amanda Hocking

I don't need love or a man to complete me, and someday, you'll find that true for yourself. Suitors will come and go, but you will remain.

~Amanda Hocking

I don't want only one night. I want all the nights. I want all of you, forever.

~Amanda Hocking

Sometimes it seems to me that that's all my life has been, a series of things that I loved deeply that I could never have.

~Amanda Hocking

My only experience with dances was what I had seen on TV, but it really wasn't that far off. The theme appeared to be "Crepe Paper in the Gymnasium," and they had mastered it perfectly.

~Amanda Hocking

When something is important to you, you make sure it's safe.

~Amanda Hocking

Being liked for the way you looked is worse than not being liked at all.

~Amanda Hocking

But you're the hardest thing I've ever done, and you're also the best. So... I think that's the moral of the story here. Anything worth having is worth fighting for.

~Amanda Hocking

I guess what I'm trying to say is that you can't live somebody else's life for them. They have to make their own choices, and sometimes all we can do is learn to live with them.

~Amanda Hocking

Everything I went through," he said. "For you. It was worth it.

~Amanda Hocking

If Peter Pan had been real, he would've gone mad and killed everyone in Neverland.

~Amanda Hocking
