We're all the same. We all want the same thing in life. Everybody going around like ants and we all want the same thing. And it's not one queen. It's not one queen with the wings.

~Andrea Corr

I have a high tolerance for discomfort.

~Andrea Corr

People are so busy anyway they don't see you or recognise you in the street.

~Andrea Corr

I hate people who splash their own pain on covers, like the whole world should hear about them. Why are we all supposed to be interested in one individual's suffering?

~Andrea Corr

I just feel that if somebody happened to fancy somebody else, well, then, I should be a friend that he can say it to.

~Andrea Corr

Life does throw some hard stuff at you as you get older, much harder. But you are more able to deal with things.

~Andrea Corr

I love escaping into character. It's a chance to try on people that you wouldn't be brave or stupid enough to be in real life.

~Andrea Corr

I love reality. I love the world. I love the smell of it. I love it.

~Andrea Corr

Everything is nicer if you feel you're in love.

~Andrea Corr

Well, I did go to Irish dancing lessons as a kid, but I was slapped and never went again.

~Andrea Corr

You can't live in your own secluded world. If you're not on the Tube, on the bus doing normal things, how can you relate to people?

~Andrea Corr

I think everybody had difficulties with that dynamic, turning the family into a band and being constantly together. So everybody, as individuals, had things to sort out.

~Andrea Corr

To us, it's very natural. Initially, it sounded kind of strange to people, because it is different to put traditional Irish music in a pop and rock mode. But they get used to it -- it is our sound.

~Andrea Corr

Musicians are probably the most uncomfortable people in themselves in the world. Happiness, I think, only exists when you're a child and once you go past 11, unfortunately it's gone.

~Andrea Corr

I go to churches to pray, but I don't go to mass.

~Andrea Corr

I don't really live by plans.

~Andrea Corr

I could never dream of being cool.

~Andrea Corr

Other people sing in the shower, but I don't.

~Andrea Corr

There's a plain girl in everybody.

~Andrea Corr

I really love singing.

~Andrea Corr

I didn't have a particular persona. I'm not Alice Cooper, you know?

~Andrea Corr
