Postmodernism surely requires an even greater grasp of symbolism, as it's increasingly an art of gesture alone.

~Andrew Eldritch

I have no musical talent at all. I was banned from music classes and told I would never be able to understand anything. I still don't think I can sing, but somehow I get away with it.

~Andrew Eldritch

I'm not sure it pays to do anything remotely public in Britain. It's such a spiteful society. People seem to enjoy making your life hard for the sake of it.

~Andrew Eldritch

Hard to find and even harder to listen to

~Andrew Eldritch

Music is there to enrich your life and make you aware of things in a slightly different way.

~Andrew Eldritch

I don't want people to come and see our gig because of the magnificent things I'm doing with my hips, but it's their evening, you know. They have to have fun. I'm a little bit naive.

~Andrew Eldritch

Apparently, I have a totally different sense of humour.

~Andrew Eldritch

I don't enjoy British shows as a rule because British audiences are strange.

~Andrew Eldritch

The business of being a popular entertainer in England is just too hard.

~Andrew Eldritch

I don't trawl record shops anymore. I usually hear music in bars or at friends' houses.

~Andrew Eldritch

People have taught me not to look for intelligence in rockmusic.

~Andrew Eldritch

Most writers can write, most rock 'n rollers cannot.

~Andrew Eldritch

I've been in Hamburg for about ten years and I just feel at home.
