Teenagers too often have to deal with loss and death. You had to cope with the untimely death of your brother; how can young people deal with such tragedies?

~Andrew Shue

When you have a tough loss, go through it and agonize. I had one loss that I still want to change, but at the same time I realize it is an important part of who I am.

~Andrew Shue

I'm just kind of taking a break now and enjoying the freedom of making my own choices. When you're on a television show for six years, they run your schedule.

~Andrew Shue

A good balance of winning and losing is important. If you just win all the time, you won't get anything out of it; having some tough losses can be really important.

~Andrew Shue

I have amazing friends who have led inspirational lives.

~Andrew Shue

The most important role models should and could be parents and teachers. But that said, once you're a teenager you've probably gotten as much of an example from your parents as you're going to.

~Andrew Shue

Try to have as diverse group of friends as possible and don't get into the the clique scenario.

~Andrew Shue

We started a movement... to build character, citizenship and confidence in young people.

~Andrew Shue

People who dream of something bigger and better are good role models.

~Andrew Shue

The money was good while it lasted. The best part was clearly that it changed my view of what's possible, as far as thinking how you can have an impact on a national level.

~Andrew Shue

There are 80 million moms in the United States. Forty million stay at home with their children.

~Andrew Shue

You start to think bigger when you see how quickly a TV show can catch on in a whole country. That confidence, and thinking big, opened a lot of doors.

~Andrew Shue

I'm a big fan of Bruce Springsteen and Tom Petty, they're my two favorites.

~Andrew Shue

When you start suppressing feelings at an early age, it hurts you down the road. Full expression of anger and pain is very important.

~Andrew Shue

It's easy to say young people should believe in themselves, but the number one thing is recognizing that it's a journey, that you have to build confidence in yourself.

~Andrew Shue

When we're young we have a very clear vision of how life is supposed to be, and it all seems very neatly packaged.

~Andrew Shue

Life is the most exciting opportunity we have.

~Andrew Shue

Young people can be the catalyst for starting the effort to redefine what's important in America.

~Andrew Shue

Fear is that thing that keeps you up there on that other plateau. Fear is that thing that just keeps you closed down, and quite frankly, alone.

~Andrew Shue

I was on Oprah's show recently talking about the people who impacted me the most. One was a teacher and one was my soccer coach. I didn't even go into my family, who had the most influence.

~Andrew Shue

Unfortunately, there are so many people who live their whole life in a place that is safe and protected and simple and they don't really have that strength inside to fly.

~Andrew Shue

If I want to continue to build the kind of effort we have with Do Something, being in a public office would help. I wouldn't rule it out, but it's not something I feel determined to do.

~Andrew Shue

After a devastating loss, your whole perspective shifts, and you're kind of in a blank space. You feel like on one side nothing matters, and on the other side a freedom because nothing matters.

~Andrew Shue

You need to make relationships to help you.
