If there's one big thing you can take from Amy Poehler as a performer, it's committing, full on.

~Andy Daly

You ought to be able to wear your character like a Lycra bodysuit.

~Andy Daly

I think Comedy Central and probably all channels are on their way toward being apps accessible on whatever the Roku of the future is.

~Andy Daly

It's hard for me to shut off my writer brain completely.

~Andy Daly

I probably have the most fun on projects where there's some room to improvise.

~Andy Daly

I have a couple of ideas for shows that I would love to bring to fruition in some way at some point.

~Andy Daly

I like it when shows end intentionally, and Review, especially, has such a long form narrative that it feels like you need to give it a thoughtfully constructed finale.

~Andy Daly

In sketch comedy, wear your character like a hat, not a suit of armor.

~Andy Daly

There were times that I would be drunk and just leave a place by myself because I had an impulse and wasn't thinking through the repercussions on others.

~Andy Daly

It's fun to play someone who seems evil and to reveal their vulnerabilities.

~Andy Daly

It's great fun to memorize somebody's biography, and then liberally play with the real facts of their life and go a step beyond reality.

~Andy Daly

There wasn't a persona or an attitude that I could reliably write good stuff from. There wasn't a persona or an attitude that I could reliably write good stuff from.

~Andy Daly

I am, like anybody else, full of contradictions and personality traits, and I don't know which ones to speak from as a stand-up or what aspects of myself to ask an audience to identify with.

~Andy Daly

When you're in front of an audience, you know if it didn't work. I get very nervous and have a fear of failure that is much more profound than in the podcast world.

~Andy Daly

I write and rewrite and memorize, and then inject my performance with improvising and spontaneity, because if something feels too rehearsed, it's not going to be fun.

~Andy Daly

When you're coming up with your philosophy and approach to performing comedy, you take special note of the things you disagree with as much as the things you agree with.

~Andy Daly

I have a troubled relationship with Hunter S. Thompson, not just because he kicked me out of a bar but also because it's become clear to me that he was not a good person.
