The men who cannot laugh at themselves frighten me even more than those who laugh at everything.

~Anne Perry

People only tell lies when the truth is disagreeable to them, or frightens them, or to cover sin.

~Anne Perry

To take for granted one's blessings is a damage to the soul, and in time one will lose them, simply from lack of care. One should never tire of nourishing and treasuring all that is lovely.

~Anne Perry

Maybe right and wrong did not move, but understanding of them did. The wrenching pain of walking the same path, even for a short space, tore away the willingness to judge.

~Anne Perry

A good library can provide the furniture of our minds and the threads from which we weave our dreams.

~Anne Perry

We all try to forget what hurts us, it is sometimes the only way we can continue.

~Anne Perry

... She knew in her heart that to be without optimism, that core of reasonless hope in the spirit rather than the brain, was a fatal flaw, the seed of death.

~Anne Perry

You start at the end, and then go back and write and go that way. Not everyone does, but I do. Some people just sit down at the page and start off. I start from what happened, including the why.

~Anne Perry

I did a complete rewrite of 650 pages in two weeks.

~Anne Perry

The truth can be very sharp. But it makes a cleaner wound than lies. It will not fester

~Anne Perry

I wonder how often in the past I may have missed the good in people because I pre-judged, based on the differences?

~Anne Perry

some kinds of beauty did not heal, but hollowed the pain even deeper.

~Anne Perry

I am now working on the second WWI story and find the challenge marvelous.

~Anne Perry

We believe world peace is inevitable.
