Death is a fickle hen, and random are her eggs.

~Armando Iannucci

Write what makes you laugh not what you think will make someone else laugh.

~Armando Iannucci

The only shared reality we have is things we have seen on television.

~Armando Iannucci

There's something inherently comic about the fact that politicians make things worse by worrying too much about something.

~Armando Iannucci

The busier you are, the less time you have to make decisions.

~Armando Iannucci

I always think you've just got to move on. If you keep wallowing in the thing that you've done for a while you get a bit stale.

~Armando Iannucci

Listening to classical music is a journey not a state; it's an activity not a meditation.

~Armando Iannucci

As a gut thing, my next project is always the complete opposite of the thing I've just done. So if I've spent a lot of time doing film, I might then do some radio.

~Armando Iannucci

I kind of like that thing of you being caught up. You think you can judge someone, and before you know it, you've been swayed by them, and actually you want more of them.

~Armando Iannucci

I'm a bit of a political geek anyway, so you tend to write how you think the rhythms of an administration will go.

~Armando Iannucci

Any president's second term ends up being quite messy. It never goes quite according to plan.

~Armando Iannucci
