Marriage is a book of which the first chapter is written in poetry and the remaining chapters in prose.

~Beverley Nichols

We both know, you and I, that if all men were gardeners, the world at last would be at peace.

~Beverley Nichols

Every moment of this strange and lovely life from dawn to dusk, is a miracle. Somewhere, always a rose is opening its petals to the dawn. Somewhere, always, a flower is fading in the dusk.

~Beverley Nichols

To dig one's own spade into one's own earth! Has life anything better to offer than this?

~Beverley Nichols

Let us be honest: most of us rather like our cats to have a streak of wickedness. I should not feel quite easy in the company of any cat that walked around the house with a saintly expression.

~Beverley Nichols

A garden is a place for shaping a little world of your own according to your heart's desire.

~Beverley Nichols

To be overcome by the fragrance of flowers is a delectable form of defeat.

~Beverley Nichols

Do you ever find yourself bursting into a sort of lunatic laughter at the sheer prettiness of things?

~Beverley Nichols

A garden without cats, it will be generally agreed, can scarcely deserve to be called a garden at all.

~Beverley Nichols

Well, I love geraniums, and anybody who does not love geraniums must obviously be a depraved and loathsome person.

~Beverley Nichols

As any psychologist will tell you, the worst thing you can possibly do to a woman is to deprive her of a grievance.

~Beverley Nichols

It is only to the gardener that time is a friend, giving each year more than he steals.
