Every time my TweetDeck shoots a new tweet to my desktop, I experience a little dopamine spritz that takes me away from... from... wait, what was I saying?

~Bill Keller

Beating up on the so-called elite media has a nice populist ring to it.

~Bill Keller

I'm a Capricorn, actually.

~Bill Keller

There is something decidedly faux about the camaraderie of Facebook, something illusory about the connectedness of Twitter.

~Bill Keller

One of the most important disciplines in journalism is to challenge your working premises.

~Bill Keller

Every technology, including the printing press, comes at some price.

~Bill Keller

My dad was an engineer, and he became the CEO of Chevron. His was an engineer's mind-set: Everything's kind of a problem how do you approach the problem?

~Bill Keller

Anyone with an Internet service provider can be a pundit or whatever they want.

~Bill Keller

It's a considerable source of tragedy in the world that people stay in powerful jobs long past the point where they're a spent force.

~Bill Keller

The curse of a journalist is that he always has more questions than answers.

~Bill Keller

The Democrats generally recoil from the subject of entitlements.

~Bill Keller

I make a joke that I'm the Internet curmudgeon, but 'wary' is a good way to put it.

~Bill Keller

I think there's a misconception that I'm opposed to social media.

~Bill Keller

I don't think anyone at Fox believes they are producing even-handed, impartial coverage.

~Bill Keller

Julian Assange, the WikiLeaks founder, has on several occasions talked about transparency as an absolute principle. I don't personally believe that.

~Bill Keller

Liberation movements - operating surreptitiously and conspiratorially - thrive on discipline and suspicion, and punish deviation or dissent.

~Bill Keller

Liberation movements - prizing ends over means - are not always particular about their friends or scrupulous about their transactions.

~Bill Keller

I don't have dating tips.

~Bill Keller

I do care if religious doctrine becomes an excuse to exclude my fellow citizens from the rights and protections our country promises.

~Bill Keller

Being an editor has been a source of great satisfaction, but writing is the thing I truly love.

~Bill Keller

I may be the old-media id, but I think I may be entitled to some credit for being a new-media pioneer.

~Bill Keller

I think Twitter is a fabulous tool. Crowd-sourcing by Twitter is useful in getting early warnings.

~Bill Keller

One of the reasons that I'm a lurker on Twitter is that every time I tweet an idea, I feel like I'm delivering something to the competition that I ought to be giving to a reporter here.

~Bill Keller

Casual reliance on unnamed sources...corrodes our credibility and, in cases that are rare but not rare enough, may abet journalistic malpractice.

~Bill Keller

I don't think fairness means that you give equal time to every point of view no matter how marginal. You weigh the sides, you do some truth-testing, you apply judgment to them.

~Bill Keller

A vote for Mitt Romney is a vote for Satan.

~Bill Keller

The most obvious drawback of social media is that they are aggressive distractions.

~Bill Keller

My view of social media is that it is a set of tools, not a religion.

~Bill Keller

Whether or not Twitter makes you stupid, it certainly makes some smart people sound stupid.

~Bill Keller

My feeling about the Internet or anything else is that the more it tends to become a cult, the more I want to call it into question.

~Bill Keller

Choosing my favorite moment in journalism would be like picking a favorite among my children. I can't pick one favorite.

~Bill Keller

You don't want to go around willy-nilly suing news organizations. That's probably self-defeating.

~Bill Keller

I think there's been a decline in the public's access to what's being done with their tax dollars, what's being done in their name. I hope that that will be repaired.

~Bill Keller

Buying an aggregator and calling it a content play is a little like a company's announcing plans to improve its cash position by hiring a counterfeiter.
