I believe in terms of the work that I do, in establishing dialogue about race relations in Latin America, steps on one of the most relevant themes today.

~Bocafloja

I think that in the colonial imaginary of the average Mexican, in how it drives us, the economic dependence on the US, and in some cases cultural dependence, is quite palpable, very strong.

~Bocafloja

I believe a lot in the subject of the power our own bodies have as marginalized beings to be able to change the sense of things.

~Bocafloja

I am conscious of how my body signifies in every space. In every place of the world our body has a different significance.
