It's so enjoyable to play a bad guy, you know.

~Brady Corbet

I was often getting hired to play sociopaths and psychopaths and stuff, which is really funny.

~Brady Corbet

I was watching Orson Welles and Jean Vigo films at a ridiculously young age.

~Brady Corbet

I realized that work doesn't beget work. Good work begets work. So I got a lot more patient and stopped worrying about working all the time.

~Brady Corbet

I guess I just would never be so arrogant as to think that anybody would even recognize me. I didn't even think about it.

~Brady Corbet

Im really bad at tests of any kind, so Im bad at auditions. I consider myself educated most of the time, but when Im under the gun, I just fail.

~Brady Corbet

To spend 36 hours or 48 hours of my life binge-watching something seems insane to me.

~Brady Corbet

Characters for me are born on page one and they die on page 100.

~Brady Corbet

Everyone's different. I mean, some people write journals for their characters and stuff, but that was never really my area.

~Brady Corbet

Now I write often. I decided that I need to write for myself - I can't really direct other people's material.

~Brady Corbet

I think I was always interested in darker characters just because there was a lot more to do.

~Brady Corbet

Basically, if I ever went and worked on a crime drama or something, it was usually just for the work.

~Brady Corbet

Pretty much any time in my career where I worked on television it was usually because of some financial woes or something.

~Brady Corbet

I look pretty different. Luckily for me, I don't get harassed or anything like that.

~Brady Corbet

I'm not really often recognized - not really. Or if I am, nobody cares enough to come and tell me that they recognize me.

~Brady Corbet

I did all sorts of cartoons and stuff. And every once in a while I still do. It's rare, but it happens.
