I met Picasso when I was a kid. I turned one of his drawings down which would be worth £37 million now. My dad wouldn't talk to me for a fortnight.

~Brian Blessed

I've become quite a serious explorer: I've been to Everest three times; I'm the oldest man to reach the North Pole; and I've just been to the lost world of Venezuela.

~Brian Blessed

The greatest danger in life is not taking chances. There are so many negative people wanting to grind you down, but you can't let them. If people say you are mad, you know you're on the right track.

~Brian Blessed

Wishing kindness and compassion to all living creatures.

~Brian Blessed

The misapprehension about me is that I am some loud, rampant maniac. I am actually very pensive and quiet.

~Brian Blessed

There will be no funeral! Before I get too old and ill, I'll go to South America and live among the Pemon people and meditate. When the time is right, they can throw my body into the volcano.

~Brian Blessed

I fed my Yak on my spare Cadbury chocolate 21,000ft up Everest. It was a blonde, very sweet female Yak. I made it my pet after that.

~Brian Blessed

In the news this week, the polls continue to slide for Gordon Brown and some people are saying he's dead and buried. But I think the opposite - I say GORDON'S ALIVE!

~Brian Blessed

I'll never retire. The new millennium is the age of adventure as far as I am concerned. I'm going up a volcano and off into space.

~Brian Blessed

My dream is to own a Hockney - I'm a Yorkshireman, and his vibrant colours are a good example of how the north-country people are vibrant and colourful.

~Brian Blessed

In the Arctic I met some Russian sailors on a submarine and they chorused, "Gordon's alive!"

~Brian Blessed

I have marvelous dreams! I meet Buddha, I meet Jesus, I meet Mohammed. I constantly dream of space, stars and planets: we are the children of stardust.

~Brian Blessed

I do everything I can for wild animals because they have such a bloody awful time.

~Brian Blessed

I can't retire from life. I love life too much and I cannot wait to start the day.

~Brian Blessed

My parents were so proud when I got a scholarship to go to theatre school - it was unheard of that a coal-miners son should go to drama school.

~Brian Blessed

When I was 11 I played the part of Rumpelstiltskin and my teacher told me I would make a great actor.

~Brian Blessed

I love Scotland - I was made an honorary Wallace after my work on 'Braveheart,' you know. If I have two or three days off, I love nothing more than driving up there and climbing around Glencoe.

~Brian Blessed

Ninety nine per cent of the time, for anyone who wins or makes money, it makes them happy.

~Brian Blessed

Life is a re-discovery.

~Brian Blessed

I went to drama school but it was very hard to get work until I was made assistant stage manager.

~Brian Blessed

I've always hated it when people overspend, are spoilt or throw their money away.

~Brian Blessed

I threw [Picasso's] drawing on the floor and in doing so, threw away about Â£50m.

~Brian Blessed

I wasn't good at examinations, but I went to a very good secondary school - Bolton-on-Deerne - with wonderful teachers, who taught me drama and encouraged me in every way.

~Brian Blessed

I've always been generous and like giving to charities and people in need.

~Brian Blessed

When I was in Downing Street, David Cameron saw me and said, "Please, shout it all around and let it penetrate to my cabinet meeting." So I bellowed: "Gordon's alive!"

~Brian Blessed

We had a food store at the theatre and I used to pinch food. I pinched some trousers and shirts to keep me going but they would wear out. I was virtually on the breadline.
