If I had never won a single medal, I'd still be skating in a rink somewhere. There wouldn't be an audience or camera flashes or autograph seekers, but I'd still be skating.

~Brian Boitano

A really important part of competition is coming back, trying to do it better the second time than you did the first.

~Brian Boitano

When a skater steps on the ice to compete, the nerves, the tension, and sheer suspense of that moment make for great drama.

~Brian Boitano

Plus the public's attention span is so short right now, if a skater doesn't strike while the iron is hot... well it's not like people will forget you, but they just won't care anymore.

~Brian Boitano

That's what amateur skating is about, technical expertise, and it should always stay that way.

~Brian Boitano

I have to consider my greatest accomplishments winning the Olympics because everything that I've done after that is really because of the Olympics.

~Brian Boitano

The Olympics are great for notoriety right off the bat, but your body of work is what people remember you for.

~Brian Boitano

So the programs all start to all look the same. I watched one free skating competition, and I thought I was watching a short program. Everyone was doing exactly the same elements.

~Brian Boitano

As an athlete, I hope we can remain focused on the Olympic spirit which celebrates achievement in sport by peoples of all nations.

~Brian Boitano

Yeah, I am a little bit, and I think it is a natural progression of the sport, of going upwards in technical ability and everything like that.

~Brian Boitano

Kat and I were in our 20s when we won in '88. Our personalities were already established. We were ready to move on to a life of professional skating.

~Brian Boitano

First and foremost I am an American athlete and I am proud to live in a country that encourages diversity, openness and tolerance.
