Anything can happen: anything. Or nothing. Who can say? The world, monstrous, is made that way, and in the end consumes us all. Who am I, administrated or no, to have the audacity to survive it?

~Brian Evenson

Misreading is a big part of reading, the way in which the level of attention you're paying can lead to some interesting residue.

~Brian Evenson

Truth cannot be imparted, it must be inflicted.

~Brian Evenson

When I say I'm instinctive [in writing], I do feel like I need to hide what I'm doing from myself. My mind just needs to be able to operate untrammelled.
