I have trashed the to-do list. To help my brain...

~Brigid Schulte

I think that was probably one of the biggest revelations, is leisure is really in the eyes of the beholder...

~Brigid Schulte

A gift, like a good friend drawing a personal road map out of the crazy busy swirl of our overloaded lives.

~Brigid Schulte

Because this is how it feels to live my life: scattered, fragmented, and exhausting.

~Brigid Schulte

Our perception of time is indeed our reality.

~Brigid Schulte

I take solace in knowing that some of the steps I took can help other people.

~Brigid Schulte

As long as you're pushing men to stay at work, you're pushing women to stay home.

~Brigid Schulte

The prejudice is against men and women - assuming men stay at work. That's the reason why we don't have enough women in the halls of power - the prejudice is pushing women to go home.

~Brigid Schulte

The best thing a society can do is ensure its children are taken care of.

~Brigid Schulte

I'm optimistic. I really believe people in power want to do the right thing.

~Brigid Schulte

Busyness is now the social norm that people feel they must conform to, Burnett says, or risk being outcasts.

~Brigid Schulte

The United States is the only advanced economy with no paid parental leave for either mothers or fathers.

~Brigid Schulte

It's incredibly painful to think back to the time I had to come back to work. I was so, so needed at home. Like the vast majority of people in America, I couldn't take unpaid leave.

~Brigid Schulte

I'm a big believer in education. If people learn the truth, they'll see the benefit if they have gender neutral policies.

~Brigid Schulte

What often matters more than the activity we're doing at a moment in time is how we feel about it.

~Brigid Schulte

As work weeks get longer and leisure time shrinks, people are becoming sicker, more distracted, absent, unproductive, and less innovative.
