Assumptions are unopened windows that foolish birds fly into, and their broken bodies are evidence gathered too late.

~Bryan Davis

Sacrifice is at the heart of repentance. Without deeds, your apology is worthless.

~Bryan Davis

Stir not murky waters if you know not the depth or the creatures that dwell beneath the surface.

~Bryan Davis

It's amazing how things could change so quickly, in the blink of an eye. Maybe more miracles awaited on the horizon.

~Bryan Davis

Too much information will make your brain choke.

~Bryan Davis

Never forget what you learned in the light when you are in the dark.

~Bryan Davis

If you draw your sword against those you sworn to protect, the very ones who trust in your strength, how will you convince them that you are a shield when the dragons come and take them away?

~Bryan Davis

Dikaios smacked Elam with his tail. "His curiosity wouldn't kill a sick kitten, much less a cat.

~Bryan Davis

Daryl shrugged. "If wishes were wardrobes, we'd be in Narnia.

~Bryan Davis

A talking computer with an attitude problem? Haven't I seen that in a dozen b-grade sci-fi flicks?" "Where do you think I got the idea?"

~Bryan Davis

Dad just told me that I'm the son of a dragon! And then he leaves?

~Bryan Davis

Forever and ever Bonnie, I will always be your friend.

~Bryan Davis

No,' the professor replied. 'Her Majesty s alive and well - at least I assume so if she hasn't met a certain van driver from Yeovil.'

~Professor Hamilton
