Temperance to be a virtue must be free, and not forced.

~C. A. Bartol

Beauty is no local deity, like the Greek and Roman gods, but omnipresent.

~C. A. Bartol

Every pure thought is a glimpse of God.

~C. A. Bartol

Gentleness and kindness will make our homes a paradise upon earth.

~C. A. Bartol

Patience is nobler motion than any deed.

~C. A. Bartol

Fine manners are like personal beauty,--a letter of credit everywhere.

~C. A. Bartol

Paradoxical as it may seem, God means not only to make us good, but to make us also happy, by sickness, disaster and disappointment.

~C. A. Bartol

Hope is the parent of Faith.

~C. A. Bartol

Self-condemnation is God's absolution; and pleading guilty, acquittal at his bar.

~C. A. Bartol

Religion is indeed woman's panoply; no one who wishes her happiness would divest her of it; no one who appreciates her virtues would weaken her best security.

~C. A. Bartol

Freedom is not caprice but room to enlarge.

~C. A. Bartol

Children are marvelously and intuitively correct physiognomists. The youngest of them exhibit this trait.

~C. A. Bartol

On the attraction between man and woman society is based; but its refined is greater than its gross force, and its weight is like the gravitation of the globe.

~C. A. Bartol

True men and women are all physicians to make us well.

~C. A. Bartol

Private sincerity is a public welfare.

~C. A. Bartol

The soul is one with its faith.

~C. A. Bartol
