I go out with a lot of British people. Some of them say I sound a little tipsy.

~Callan McAuliffe

I don't want to scrounge around and be homeless, and I want to finish my education.

~Callan McAuliffe

I find that you learn from others. It's very much about watching TV and watching movies for me and grasping that way and watching other people act.

~Callan McAuliffe

A school out of Canberra sends me a term's worth of work. I sit on the couch by myself and complete it and send it back.

~Callan McAuliffe

I can run up a wall and do a back flip - that's the most impressive thing that I can do.

~Callan McAuliffe

I like to sleep. I like to do nothing. Nothing is my favorite kind of something.

~Callan McAuliffe

I don't go for girls who have beach blond hair, that stereotypical girl thing. But, you know, whatever comes around.

~Callan McAuliffe

I don't like concrete jungles.

~Callan McAuliffe

I hate watching myself, as do a lot of actors.

~Callan McAuliffe

I can play songs that I hear from a movie and just play it a few times on the keyboard. I will hit all the notes on the keyboard until I find the right key, and then I will play the rest of the song.

~Callan McAuliffe

I guess I'd always mocked the American accent. I didn't consider it a respectable dialect, but I was told that it was.

~Callan McAuliffe

I'm not a big texter anyway. I'm really slow at it and so I try to avoid it to avoid embarrassment, you know what I mean?

~Callan McAuliffe

I hate acting classes. I did a few, but I've always hated acting classes. I prefer to just watch a movie or watch TV and take it from there.

~Callan McAuliffe

The first American word that I learned was cheeseburger. And the first sentence I learned was, "I'm sorry but we don't serve breakfast after 12 o'clock."

~Callan McAuliffe

I believe in things that have proof.

~Callan McAuliffe

I like people who are being normal and being themselves.

~Callan McAuliffe

I've always had a natural affiliation with nature. If I wasn't an actor, I'd be some sort of biologist working in the field in Africa or something.

~Callan McAuliffe

I'm not really one for fancy, big words and poetry, and the scriptwriters worked very hard on 'Paradise Lost' to translate it.

~Callan McAuliffe

The Australian accent is sort of like going down a step in smartness, you could say, because you guys pronounce things as they're spelled. We add and abbreviate stuff.

~Callan McAuliffe

Every country needs another country to make fun of.

~Callan McAuliffe

I would say I'm pretty much the exact same as the stereotypical American kid. I mean I'm really lazy, I play a lot of video games, I like girls. I like, you know, the violence and action type thing.

~Callan McAuliffe

I want to be able to have a conversation with people. I don't want to be stupid. I'd like to have a life outside acting.

~Callan McAuliffe

I never thought acting would be my life. I only started doing it because I needed something to occupy my weekends after I dislocated my knee and couldn't play sport.
