That is what love is I thought. A possibility that becomes a choice. A choice you keep making over and over. Day after day. Year after year. Time after time.

~Cameron Dokey

Yet even the brightest of sunrises must come to an end.

~Cameron Dokey

Little princess, lovely as the dawn, well named Aurore.

~Cameron Dokey

Remember that yours is not the only heart that may be wishing for love.

~Cameron Dokey

I had to cease to mourn what could never be and make the most of what was possible. And I would begin doing that by trying to mend the hurts of the past.

~Cameron Dokey

There is a tale...It tells of the days when a blight hung over our land. Nothing prospered. Nothing flourished. Not even zucchini would grow.

~Cameron Dokey

Maybe all young men who love us become knights in shining armor when we love them back.

~Cameron Dokey

...to be unkind because you are thoughtless is the worst kind of blindness.

~Cameron Dokey

All of us show many faces to the world. No one shows her true face all of the time. To do that would be dangerous, for what is seen can also be known.

~Cameron Dokey

For surely a king is first a man. And so it must follow that a king does as all men do: the best he can.

~Cameron Dokey

Really believing in "once upon a time". Believing that it will draw you in, take you with me to a place you've never been before.

~Cameron Dokey

Darkness may cover light, but that is not the same thing as putting it out. Whereas, to overcome darkness, all light need do is to exist.

~Cameron Dokey

Love so joyfully and freely given can never be taken away. It is never truly gone.

~Cameron Dokey

In spite of myself, I gave a snort. "Just once, I'd like to hear a simple, straightforward prophecy.

~Cameron Dokey

How much easier my life would be if I did not love you! I thought. How much less painful, but how much plainer. How much less color there would be in the world.

~Cameron Dokey

Over and over, we start our own tales, compose our own stories, whether our lives are short or long. Until at last all our beginnings come down to just one end, and the tale of who we are is done.

~Cameron Dokey

How did you explain a thing it had not occurred to you to question? A thing you just knew, clear through to your soul?

~Cameron Dokey

I am free to choose my own actions. Indeed, like everyone else, I must be so. A good act that is compelled is not goodness at all, but merely force.

~Cameron Dokey

Even the most straightforward of paths could turn out to be more complicated than it seemed at first.

~Cameron Dokey

If you have to ask, you've never been in love. More than that, you've never had your feelings hurt by the one you want to trust and cherish you most of all.

~Cameron Dokey

Love cannot thrive simply by being offered. Sooner or later it must be accepted and reciprocated. It must be seen for what it is and nourished according to its needs, or it will die.

~Cameron Dokey

Keep what you hold in your heart safe and strong.

~Cameron Dokey

For in hope's absence, a miracle arrived

~Cameron Dokey

Five is for five heartbeats, the length of time it takes to breathe in or out. For that is how quickly a life may change, for better or for ill. The time it takes to make up, or change, your mind.

~Cameron Dokey

I will not fail,' the water bearer's daughter vowed. 'But worse than failing is not to try at all. For then there can be no hope of success.

~Cameron Dokey

Thinking about dark and troublesome things, wondering when they'll come to pay you a visit, turns out to be the very best way to call them to your side.

~Cameron Dokey

True love comes when it will, not when it's called.
