If you're overfishing at the top of the food chain, and acidifying the ocean at the bottom, you're creating a squeeze that could conceivably collapse the whole system.

~Carl Safina

If you ask the fish whether they'd rather have an oil spill or a season of fishing, I wouldn't be surprised if they'd vote for another blowout.

~Carl Safina

I am drawn to the wild not because it is wild but because it is sensible, logical, ordered, stable, resilient. Wild nature is everything we're struggling to regain.

~Carl Safina

To save the seas, we can eat sustainably and be conscious of the seafood we eat.

~Carl Safina

Whether one's special emphasis is global warming or child welfare, the cause is the same cause. And justice comes from the same place being human comes from: compassion.

~Carl Safina

Any honest inquiry into the reality of nature also yields insights about ourselves.

~Carl Safina

We are blessed with a magnificent and miraculous world ocean on this planet. But we are also stressing it in ways that we are not even close to bringing under control.

~Carl Safina

Economists don't seem to have noticed that the economy sits entirely within the ecology.

~Carl Safina

Fishing provides time to think, and reason not to. If you have the virtue of patience, an hour or two of casting alone is plenty of time to review all you've learned about the grand themes of life.

~Carl Safina

But one doesn't wait for a revolution. One becomes it.

~Carl Safina

Try to cut down drastically on plastic. Recycle. Use less energy and more renewable energy. We can all live better by doing better for ourselves and the sea!

~Carl Safina

We put the murderer in charge of the crime scene.

~Carl Safina

If you look right, you can see the whole world from wherever you happen to be.
