There's just something beautiful about walking on snow that nobody else has walked on. It makes you believe you're special.

~Carol Rifka Brunt

You think I don't know about wrong love, June? You think I don't understand embarrassing love?

~Carol Rifka Brunt

My mother gave me a disappointed look. Then I gave her one back. Mine was for everything, not just the sandwich.

~Carol Rifka Brunt

I only need one good friend to see me through. Most people aren't like that. Most people are always looking out for more people to know.

~Carol Rifka Brunt

Nothing had changed. I was the stupid one again. I was the girl who never understood who she was to people.

~Carol Rifka Brunt

I dream about people who don't need to have sex to know they love each other.

~Carol Rifka Brunt

I had no idea how greedy my heart really was.

~Carol Rifka Brunt

Sometimes it feels good to take the long way home.

~Carol Rifka Brunt

I go to the movies whenever I get the chance, because the movie theater is like the woods. It's another place that's like a time machine.

~Carol Rifka Brunt

I stared hard, trying to find a pattern. Thinking if I kept looking hard enough, maybe the pieces of the world would fit back together into something I could understand.

~Carol Rifka Brunt

I need to figure out the secret. I need to work out how to keep things flying back to me instead of always flying away.

~Carol Rifka Brunt

I was in a place where nobody knew my heart even a little bit.

~Carol Rifka Brunt

Going into the woods alone is the best way to pretend you're in another time. It's a thing you can only do alone. If there's somebody else with you, it's too easy to remember where you really are.

~Carol Rifka Brunt

I felt like I had proof that not all days are the same length, not all time has the same weight. Proof that there are worlds and worlds and worlds on top of worlds, if you want them to be there.

~Carol Rifka Brunt

I know all about love that's too big to stay in a tiny bucket. Splashing out all over the place in the most embarrassing way possible.

~Carol Rifka Brunt

You could try to believe what you wanted, but it never worked. Your brain and your heart decided what you were going to believe and that was that. Whether you liked it or not.

~Carol Rifka Brunt

It's hard to do that, to decide to believe one thing over another.

~Carol Rifka Brunt

Once you know a thing you can't ever unknow it.

~Carol Rifka Brunt

I knew the way lost hopes could be dangerous, how they could turn a person into someone they never thought they'd be.

~Carol Rifka Brunt

There are dark black buttons tattooed on my heart. I'll carry them for the rest of my days.

~Carol Rifka Brunt

If my life was a film, I'd have walked out by now.

~Carol Rifka Brunt

The kinds of things I want don't cost money.

~Carol Rifka Brunt

You get into habits. Ways of being with certain people.

~Carol Rifka Brunt

You can build a whole world around the tiniest of touches.
