There's no book that absolutely everyone loves.

~Carolyn Parkhurst

The conclusion I have reached is that, above all, dogs are witnesses.

~Carolyn Parkhurst

It's gratifying to know that you've appeared in someone else's dreams. It's proof that you exist, in a way, proof that you have substance and value outside the walls of your own mind.

~Carolyn Parkhurst

I can't take one breath, not one single breath, without knowing that I love you.

~Carolyn Parkhurst

Perhaps she saw before her a lifetime of walking on the ruined earth and chose instead a single moment in the air.

~Carolyn Parkhurst

Sometimes I wonder how we can be so sure what it is God sees. How arrogant we are, I sometimes think, to imagine there's someone watching us every minute. To think our every action matters that much.

~Carolyn Parkhurst

I wake up in that state of grief when you can tell you've been mourning even in your sleep.

~Carolyn Parkhurst

The simplest thing that can be said about any person, any relationship, is that it's not simple at all.

~Carolyn Parkhurst

I'm not going to feel guilty for wanting the things that everyone wants.

~Carolyn Parkhurst

It's true, isn't it, that each of us has two hearts? The secret heart, curled behind like a fist, living gnarled and shrunken beneath the plain, open one we use every day.

~Carolyn Parkhurst

Because for most of us, suicide is a moment we'll never choose. It's only for people like Lexy, who know they might choose eventually, who believe they have a choice to make.
