I used to sit in school and dream about getting into films.

~Cary Elwes

I do not envy the headache you will have when you awake. In the meantime, dream of large women.

~Cary Elwes

There's a shortage of perfect breasts in this world. It would be a pity to damage yours.

~Cary Elwes

I'll explain and I'll use small words so that you'll be sure to understand, you warthog faced buffoon.

~Cary Elwes

We are men of action. Lies do not become us.

~Cary Elwes

I've been doing some writing, which I find very cathartic and fun.

~Cary Elwes

I take away something from every role. I'm still learning and that's what life is about.

~Cary Elwes

Any actor should be grateful if he's remembered for one movie in their lifetime.

~Cary Elwes

Im something of a history buff. Its deliberate that a lot of my films have been period pieces.

~Cary Elwes

Life will teach you, but you have to live long enough to get those lessons.

~Cary Elwes

I consider myself a student, both in my work and my life, and I'm constantly learning and I'm constantly grateful for that.

~Cary Elwes

When I work, I live in a fantasy world. It's great. I get to play different characters who inspire me.

~Cary Elwes

I think that's all you can hope for as an actor when you read a script; that after the first thirty pages it has some meaning to it.

~Cary Elwes

It's true in life, as in the movies, that the greatest highs are often followed by the lowest lows.

~Cary Elwes

New York has the best tap water.

~Cary Elwes

I think that two-dimensional film will always be here to stay because it always has its place, but 3D does too.

~Cary Elwes

I got a massive overdose of gamma radiation from the Xerox machine and just printing call sheets, you know? By the time I stepped in front of the camera, I was very comfortable. It was great.

~Cary Elwes

I grew up in the art world.

~Cary Elwes

Truly, you have a dizzying intellect.

~Cary Elwes

The things that you know intellectually when you're young become internalized as you get older. You realize all those clichés.

~Cary Elwes

I take away something from every role.

~Cary Elwes

The experience you have making the movie is all you have; when the movie's finished, that's for other people. But while you're doing it, that's your time on the planet, so you want it to be good.

~Cary Elwes

I feel like if a film is well-written, then the character's arc is complete. There really is very little room to expand on that afterwards.

~Cary Elwes

I like to have a good experience. That's all you have.

~Cary Elwes

If you get into the area of judging the character you're playing you're getting into a sticky area.

~Cary Elwes

No one is black and white or good or bad or happy or sad or what have you. [All have] particular idiosyncrasies that make them fascinating and that's how I tend to approach a character.

~Cary Elwes

I think as an actor you're lucky to have any film take on a life of its own long after it's left the theater.

~Cary Elwes

My real father was a portrait painter. I went to a lot of auctions as a kid and galleries.
