When you don't talk, there's a lot of stuff that ends up not getting said.

~Catherine Gilbert Murdock

How could I pretend to be someone else when I was already failing at being the person I already was?

~Catherine Gilbert Murdock

Sometimes, well, all the time, I can't think of what to say because I'm so dumb and stuff, and then maybe I think of it like five days later.

~Catherine Gilbert Murdock

Today exists between yesterday and tomorrow.

~Catherine Gilbert Murdock

What is a staircase, but a corridor improved by elevation?

~Catherine Gilbert Murdock

And if I didn't, I'd spend the rest of my life wondering who I could have turned into if only I'd had the guts to try.

~Catherine Gilbert Murdock

She says you're not truly human until you've had your heart broken and you've broken someone's heart.

~Catherine Gilbert Murdock

Oh. Listen, this is really hard for me . . . "What is?" "You know. Being liked." I started to cry. I couldn't help it.

~Catherine Gilbert Murdock

But it turns out that even if I don't talk a lot, when it's something that matters I still have a lot to say.

~Catherine Gilbert Murdock

I milked, of course, and did some work around the barn, and tried not to think about Brian, which was like trying not to breathe.

~Catherine Gilbert Murdock

Everyone I looked at, their whole lives, did exactly what they were supposed to do without even questioning it, without even wondering if they could do something different.

~Catherine Gilbert Murdock

It was like he was in a contest to see who could do the least work, only he was the only contestant.

~Catherine Gilbert Murdock

And I have to tell you, as tough as farming is, the idea of farming when you're losing money year after year... that's not life even, that's like death. That's eternal damnation.

~Catherine Gilbert Murdock

I hate it when people make fun of me and it turns out they're right.

~Catherine Gilbert Murdock

That which is priceless has no cost.

~Catherine Gilbert Murdock

I'd promised myself that I'd really work on talking more, talking about uncomfortable things, because I could see from Brian how well things could work out if you did.

~Catherine Gilbert Murdock

I ultimately decided to hold my tongue and settle instead for the comfort of ignorance. Not knowing the truth, I retained hope, and that hope I held like a smooth warm stone against my heart.

~Catherine Gilbert Murdock

And have your mother put my head on a stake? Do you have any notion what that would do to my handsome good looks?

~Catherine Gilbert Murdock

It kind of struck me how great it would be to go out with a guy that size. And if you, you know, got tired of dating him, you could always use him as a house or something.

~Catherine Gilbert Murdock

Why was it that jam always coated me so?
