I should only have been as lucky as Valentino, in the movies - I didnt have to be a gigolo. In real life.

~Cesar Romero

The Thin Man was a good break, because it was highly popular. I played a gigolo in it.

~Cesar Romero

Bugsy Siegel. The mobster with the beautiful blue eyes.

~Cesar Romero

Valentino was apparently gay or bisexual. And his two lesbian wives. But without any question, he had sex with men. From choice. So he was one or the other.

~Cesar Romero

They would glue the wig to the front of my forehead, and after a while it would give me a headache.

~Cesar Romero

Well, you know what they say in Hollywood - the most important thing is being sincere, even if you have to fake it.

~Cesar Romero

In the future, all robots will act like Don Knotts.

~Cesar Romero

Due to a big bust in Cuba, my father's business suffered badly, so I was free to choose my own career. I became a professional dancer, and I went on the road and started making real money.

~Cesar Romero

Because of my age and because there's more work on the small screen. What it's missing in quality it makes up for in quantity. From an actor's selfish point of view.

~Cesar Romero

I was supposed to be a romancer, either wooing the leading lady or competing with the leading man for her.

~Cesar Romero

I'm satisfied to go in at the bottom - that's the best way to learn what things are all about.

~Cesar Romero

I can't date women my own age any more - I hate going to cemeteries.

~Cesar Romero

They say the camera never lies. It lies every day.

~Cesar Romero

It's a new town. The old elegance is gone. It used to be one big family, this industry.

~Cesar Romero

I know Raft did have some genuine affairs with actresses.

~Cesar Romero

George Raft may or may not have gone both ways, but he was very sensitive to what they said about him, and it was one factor why he decided to play all those gangsters in the movies.

~Cesar Romero

Everybody in Hollywood was in Around the World in 80 Days. If you weren't, you left town and made up an excuse.

~Cesar Romero

A joke a day keeps the gloom away!

~Cesar Romero

If my father's business hadn't gone broke, I'd be exporting nuts, bolts and sugar machinery right now. What an awful thought!

~Cesar Romero

I'm 86 and my doctor used to tell me to slow down - at least he did until he dropped dead.

~Cesar Romero

I was wearing corn plasters above and below my toes and taping my ankles twice.

~Cesar Romero

I had to keep from laughing when a male relative of mine became concerned about how often I danced.

~Cesar Romero

The make up took about an hour to put on, but the wig was a thing that bothered me more than anything else.

~Cesar Romero

It's the maritime equivalent of rock climbing.

~Cesar Romero

I thought it was very humanitarian of Sean Penn and Madonna to marry each other. That way, they make only two people miserable instead of four.

~Cesar Romero

I should remember more, and I have a pretty good memory.

~Cesar Romero

I was born in the USA, which many people still find hard to believe.

~Cesar Romero

All kinds of celebrities, political ones as well, are increasingly being targeted. In this country, with all the countless guns.

~Cesar Romero

We Latins make splendid lovers and splendid older men.

~Cesar Romero

Sometimes, I wonder what I'm doing here.
