At least you used to know 'there's the villain, there's the good guy', but today there are more shades of grey.

~Charles Roven

Chicago's such a great city because it's got so many different brilliantly architecturally looking buildings, and you can really modify that city.

~Charles Roven

People tend to think about God more when the clock starts to wind down.

~Charles Roven

You think that it must be great to be Superman but it's also hard to be Superman, especially when growing up.

~Charles Roven

There is an expectation with a superhero film that there is spectacle and action but there also has to be heart. Striking that balance is really important.

~Charles Roven

It's rare that I'm working on a movie and that's the case. My goal is the same, ultimately at a certain point you give it to the director and their vision. You're there to support that vision.

~Charles Roven

I was also an Action Comic fan when I was a young kid and those comic books affected me and Superman is - he's the one. He's the first one. He's the one. He's the one everybody is always compared to.

~Charles Roven

I think that Superman is the pinnacle of the DC Universe. Our feeling always was that you need to get Superman right. That was also our goal. We didn't want to ignore that this universe exists.
