It's linkage I'm talking about, and harmonies and structures, And all the various things that lock our wrists to the past.

~Charles Wright

The music of memory has its own pitch,/which not everyone hears.

~Charles Wright

It's up there, and you can see the front of it. But what it is isn't what you're looking at. It's behind what you're looking at.

~Charles Wright

How sweet the past is, no matter how wrong, or how sad. How sweet is yesterday's noise

~Charles Wright

It may not be written in any book, but it is written - You can't go back, you can't repeat the unrepeatable.

~Charles Wright

Some people have everything Other people don't But everything don't mean a thing If it ain't the thing you want

~Charles Wright

If you want great tranquility/ It's hard work and a long walk

~Charles Wright

Poetry is the dark side of the moon.

~Charles Wright

Our dreams are luminous, a cast fire upon the world. Morning arrives and that's it. Sunlight darkens the earth.

~Charles Wright

The ache for anything is a thick dust in the heart.

~Charles Wright

Everyone knows this. The voyage into the interior is all that matters,
Whatever your ride.

~Charles Wright

All forms of landscape are autobiographical.

~Charles Wright

I empty myself with light Until I become morning.

~Charles Wright

How many times can summer turn to fall in one life?

~Charles Wright

November's a burn and an ache.

~Charles Wright
