I may be president of the United States, but my private life is nobody's damned business.

~Chester A. Arthur

If it were not for the reporters, I would tell you the truth.

~Chester A. Arthur

Where you stand depends where you sit.

~Chester A. Arthur

Well, there doesn't seem anything else for an ex-President to do but to go into the country and raise big pumpkins.

~Chester A. Arthur

Since I came here I have learned that Chester A. Arthur is one man and the President of the United States is another.

~Chester A. Arthur

Honors to me now are not what they once were.

~Chester A. Arthur

Men may die, but the fabric of our free institutions remains unshaken.

~Chester A. Arthur

As is natural with contiguous states having like institutions and like aims of advancement and development, the friendship of the United States and Mexico has been constantly maintained.

~Chester A. Arthur

The extravagant expenditure of public money is an evil not to be measured by the value of that money to the people who are taxed for it.

~Chester A. Arthur

The office of the Vice-President is a greater honor than I ever dreamed of attaining.

~Chester A. Arthur

I trust the time is nigh when, with the universal assent of civilized people, all international differences shall be determined without resort to arms by the benignant processes of civilization.

~Chester A. Arthur

No higher proof exists of the strength of popular government than, though the chosen of the people be struck down, his constitutional successor is peacefully installed without shock or strain.

~Chester A. Arthur

Experience has shown that the trade of the East is the key to national wealth and influence.

~Chester A. Arthur

The countries of the American continent and the adjacent islands are for the United States the natural marts of supply and demand.
