As a filmmaker you make your films with the audience you want to attract in mind.

~Chika Anadu

While my work is usually about the Igbo woman experience, there are many aspects of my female characters that women everywhere can and do relate to.

~Chika Anadu

The audience I'm targeting doesn't care about the language spoken in the films they watch. They're interested in more important things like story, performance, cinematography etc.

~Chika Anadu

I have loved filmed from when I was a child, but I never considered it as a future career.

~Chika Anadu

There are a lot of filmmakers I love whose work doesn't inspire mine at all. For example: Quentin Tarantino. From his films you can see that he has a wicked sense of humour, and I love that!

~Chika Anadu

I would describe myself as a filmmaker, period.

~Chika Anadu

Nollywood is a genre, and not the entire Nigerian film industry.

~Chika Anadu

My favourite films are in languages I don't understand.

~Chika Anadu

It was never a deliberate decision to make films about the 'woman experience'.

~Chika Anadu

I entered the film industry sprinting, but not for long.

~Chika Anadu

I prefer to discover new talent by holding open auditions.

~Chika Anadu

I definitely don't intend to only make films about Nigerians or Africans. I want to make films about people, any people.
