That's just a fact of life. So I've taken music into my life and it's gotten into my blood to the point where even when I am alone, I've got something to hang onto.

~Chuck Ragan

I met some people who showed me a path in music where they were like hey, look, while yes, it can have to do with being popular and making money, it DOESN'T have to be.

~Chuck Ragan

You're always kind of shifting and changing and it's a really exciting process.

~Chuck Ragan

I find a ton of inspiration from the artists that I'm writing with, that I'm playing shows with, and that I'm sitting down and having coffee with.

~Chuck Ragan

People showed me this way of dealing with music, writing songs, thinking about music and shows and our community and the fact that it doesn't have to be about being popular or fashion or making money.

~Chuck Ragan

Creating records and writing music with people I admire and respect is a very spiritual and enlightening thing for me.

~Chuck Ragan

On the road, it's constant sensory overload, and it's easy to lose track of days and time and to get caught up in the constant giving of yourself.
