Women challenge the status quo because we are never it.

~Cindy Gallop

We have to move from making good advertising, to making advertising good.

~Cindy Gallop

Out of discomfort comes greatness.

~Cindy Gallop

I like to describe myself as a proudly visible member of the most invisible segments of our society - older women.

~Cindy Gallop

Too many people, including the ad industry, believe the future is something that happens and just rolls them over in it's wake.

~Cindy Gallop

Anyone who has worked with me knows that I am extremely action-oriented. I'm all about making things happen.

~Cindy Gallop

People love advertising in particular but they hate advertising in general.

~Cindy Gallop

The single largest pool of untapped resource in this world is human good intentions that never translate into action.

~Cindy Gallop

I realized I was an attractive older woman who never wanted to settle down.

~Cindy Gallop

I deplore the shying away that can go on, within women, from the term 'feminist.' I am, absolutely, all about being a feminist.

~Cindy Gallop

I design my start-up ventures around my own personal beliefs and values.

~Cindy Gallop

There was no active, conscious decision-making point, just a gradual realization over time that I'm very happy minus children and marriage.

~Cindy Gallop

I've never felt any particular desire to be married.

~Cindy Gallop

Despite their good intentions, today's businesses are missing an opportunity to integrate social responsibility and day-to-day business objectives - to do good and make money simultaneously.

~Cindy Gallop

It took a woman to actually do something about the lack of women in creative departments.

~Cindy Gallop

My personal cause and platform, if you like, is women's rights and women's issues.

~Cindy Gallop

I consider myself a rampant feminist.

~Cindy Gallop

I had a high-flying career. Never wanted to get married. All I wanted to do was have some fun.

~Cindy Gallop

I like to stand out and make a statement.

~Cindy Gallop

My background is advertising: I moved to New York from London in 1998 to start up the U.S. office of ad agency Bartle Bogle Hegarty.

~Cindy Gallop

I realized relatively early on that I had no desire to be a mother whatsoever. I actually love children, but specifically other people's.
