The labour Party has lost the last four elections. If they lose another, they get to keep the liberal party.

~Clive Anderson

My favourite plant is the foxglove. I think they are a perfect balance between being a garden plant and a wild plant, as at home in woodland as they are in a city.

I'm not bald. I'm just taller than my hair.

~Clive Anderson

I've always liked trees. And then, growing up, I took an interest in ecology, hedges being destroyed, the landscape being turned into prairies.

~Clive Anderson

On the environmental front there's concern about global warming and high levels of carbon dioxide, and trees take in CO₂ and store carbon.

Gardening has just sort of grown on me. I find it therapeutic. And I like smelly things.

~Clive Anderson

I don't think I'm really a rude person, but now I see myself on television, I think, 'Oh, God, that is a bit strong.' And I wonder if I've always been like that and I haven't been aware of it.

You can be a famous poisoner or a successful poisoner, but not both, and the same seems to apply to Great Train Robbers.

~Clive Anderson

I think political correctness is a moving line.

~Clive Anderson

This is me, Clive Anderson, saying good night. Good night.

~Clive Anderson

I try to make myself walk around a bit, but I probably think about it more than I actually do it. Years ago, I did think about joining a gym.

I'm a trained lawyer, after all, so I don't have to admit to anything.

~Clive Anderson

If I ever had any vanity, then I definitely lost it by being on television.

~Clive Anderson

It's true, people don't imagine I'd be particularly woody.

~Clive Anderson

If I ever had any vanity, then I definitely lost it by being on television. It doesn't do you any favours in terms of showing you what you look like and what your emotions are.

~Clive Anderson

I like being forced to think about things in a different way.

~Clive Anderson

I like to think of myself as a natural gardener.

~Clive Anderson

I like New York. There are similarities with London that make it feel rather like home, but at the same time it's slightly fictional.

I have done well out of TV, but not well enough to buy football clubs. I'm not sure it's ever a way to make money.

~Clive Anderson

I remember being in China and realising how irrelevant not even Britain is, but also Europe. We're just another remote country that hardly impinges on some places at all.

I'm pale-skinned so I don't feel at my best on a beach.

~Clive Anderson

I am going to have to stick to the script. If I muck around with the words it will defeat the object.

~Clive Anderson

I do find myself surprised by the comedy shows that seem to have the same joke week in week out.
