More and more, money is becoming a religion.

~Costa-Gavras

We don't live in Disneyland. We live in blood and in time, not in Fantasyland. We live in a tragic world.

~Costa-Gavras

Aggressive capitalism leads the world, and we can see the results, especially in Europe: more poverty for the vast majority, and more riches for a few.

~Costa-Gavras

Technology is an extension of our hands and our feet, not our spirit.

~Costa-Gavras

I initially studied literature [in France], and then I went to cinema school. I discovered the Cinematheque, and saw not only action movies and westerns, but also lots of serious movies.

~Costa-Gavras

We saw what happens with Bolsheviks. It was another catastrophe. I don't have the solution. The moviemaker can ask questions but not give solutions.

~Costa-Gavras

Many years ago making movies was something. It was the major entertainment just to go to the cinema, once, twice a week. At the time, something like 400 million people went to the movies.

~Costa-Gavras

Essentially, filmmakers have to be free and not directed by power or politicians.
