Also, in my acting, I feel very much like a storyteller, exploring the flaws of the characters that I interpret. I look for the imperfections, and I love a character that is just so flawed.

~Danny Huston

I seem to play a lot of losers.

~Danny Huston

There's a point where art is not subjective, and my example for that is Picasso. If you don't like Picasso, that's your problem.

~Danny Huston

Sometimes film is just the family business. Some families are generations of carpenters or farmers, or they make clothes, or they're all lawyers. I'm in the family business.

~Danny Huston

In a way, all actors are gypsies, or much like a traveling circus.

~Danny Huston

I consider myself a storyteller, not really even an actor. I consider myself a storyteller.

~Danny Huston

I resisted the film business as long as I could, because of the big circus act and the amount of money that it costs to make films - I saw my father suffer through that.

~Danny Huston

I loved painting and drawing for many reasons. One of them was that all it really required was me, a pencil and a pad. It was something I was passionate about, and still am.

~Danny Huston

When I was really young, I shot a lot with my Super 8.

~Danny Huston

The whole thing of doing a TV series, I find it very daunting not knowing where the story's going.

~Danny Huston

I started as a director and just fell upon acting.

~Danny Huston

I love playing bad. But my whole thing is usually villains that don't know that they're evil.

~Danny Huston

I had no ambition to become an actor at all.

~Danny Huston

Growing up, I spent a lot of time on film sets all over the world.
