You're sacking them, you're bagging them. And that's what you're doing with a quarterback.

~Deacon Jones

Be patient with the negative people of the world. Take a moment to think how they are helping you clarify your own thinking and firming your own resolve. Then, headslap them out of your way.

~Deacon Jones

It took me a long time to figure out that real big-time success comes from taking lots of small, ordinary steps in the right direction. And you can't ever take the next step until you take the first.

~Deacon Jones

Anytime you go upside a man's head - or a woman - then they have a tendency to blink they eyes. Or close they eyes.

~Deacon Jones

You are one of a kind, one in a billion, an incredible unique individual. The problem is, so is everybody else.

~Deacon Jones

All men are created equal. After that, it's up to you.

~Deacon Jones

And so now you think society is to blame for the mess you made of yourself?

~Deacon Jones

I was the originator of smack. Some guys rattle with smack; with other guys it rolls right off their shoulders like nothing.

~Deacon Jones

You'll find your life greatly simplified if you only worry about stuff you can fix.

~Deacon Jones

The only thing Native Americans ever did better than the rest of us is spirituality. Of course, that's everything, isn't it?

~Deacon Jones

I believe that if you die trying to be your best, the world is still a better place.

~Deacon Jones

Memory is what you did. Life is what you're doing.

~Deacon Jones

When I was a teenager, I was so dumb my mamma knocked me off the porch with a broom. You wish you had so good a mamma.

~Deacon Jones

Know the difference between famous and great.

~Deacon Jones

How are you going to do great things if you are not committed to your work.

~Deacon Jones

How can you possibly be sympathetic to every fool on the planet? Just the other day, I heard a man whining about his hopeless love of cross-dressing. Call me unenlightened, but I started to laugh.

~Deacon Jones

The only rules not meant to be broken are those of love and virtue.

~Deacon Jones

I never was very big on praying for victory. For God to give a big win to the Denver Broncos, wouldn't He have to take it away from somebody else, say, the Green Bay Packers?

~Deacon Jones

There are all kinds of smiles. On the football field I mostly used the one where the hawk spots the dove.

~Deacon Jones

I reserve the right to change my mind. But once I decide on something, I'm going to need a good reason to switch.

~Deacon Jones

The problem a guy who lies all the time faces is he never can tell when anybody else is telling the truth.

~Deacon Jones

If you feel like you want to die, it's time to sit down and make a list of all the things you haven't done yet.

~Deacon Jones

First, you've got to get the job. "Yeah, I can do it," I would say. When I was a kid, I could do anything. Lucky nobody ever asked me if I could fly a jet plane.

~Deacon Jones

A nation that spends billions to fix international problems will not have much left over for the victims of tornadoes in Oklahoma.
