When inspiration comes life is lived in the moment and peace descends. When inspiration leaves thoughts turn to violently killing time

~Dean Cavanagh

Simplicity takes time, patience & practice. Complexity offers too many excuses for failure

~Dean Cavanagh

Humanity enveloped in entropy desperately seeking symmetry for peace of mind

~Dean Cavanagh

Royal blood isn't blue, it is a jaundiced shade of red and riddled with broken chromosomes

~Dean Cavanagh

We don't fall in love, we fall in lust. We ascend to love.

~Dean Cavanagh

I obviously invented Solipsism

~Dean Cavanagh

True Love Isn't Hearts & Flowers. It's Blood & Guts & Bouquets Of Barbed Wire

~Dean Cavanagh

Those who understand the true nature of humanity are always loners.

~Dean Cavanagh

The ego camouflages itself like a fox born and raised in a hen house. Its only worry is that you fail to notice its presence every so often and start acting without fear

~Dean Cavanagh

You can't live in the digital and die in the analog.

~Dean Cavanagh

Corporatism trying to redeem itself through charity is akin to a serial killer offering to pay a fine for his crimes.

~Dean Cavanagh

Life is simply a vacation from the infinite

~Dean Cavanagh

Can the perpetrator of a "senseless" crime use transcendence as a defense?

~Dean Cavanagh

We can depend on nobody in this world, and sometimes we even betray ourselves.

~Dean Cavanagh

Faking your own death is illegal, yet faking your own life is celebrated

~Dean Cavanagh

Jay-Z and Kanye West are to authentic rap culture what diseased rates were to 14th century Europeans

~Dean Cavanagh

Nihilism, there's really nothing to it.

~Dean Cavanagh

Culture now spreads at central nervous system speed. It's a shame that compassion doesn't.

~Dean Cavanagh

All creativity is a work in progress.

~Dean Cavanagh

Analytically speaking, Sigmund Freud talked out of his arse

~Dean Cavanagh

We need more moral compasses and less Sat Navs

~Dean Cavanagh

You can never read too much into anything

~Dean Cavanagh

The most visceral science fiction always takes place in the past and focuses on the humdrum

~Dean Cavanagh

The atheist suicide bomber is unfaithfully committed to his mission

~Dean Cavanagh

The Celebrity Charity Industrial Complex Makes a Mockery of Compassion

~Dean Cavanagh

Entertainment alleviates the fear of life, but art vanquishes the fear of death

~Dean Cavanagh

The future is just a memory that has yet to be born

~Dean Cavanagh

We have an infinite capacity for self interest, yet the infinite has absolutely no interest in us

~Dean Cavanagh

The Plutocracy's insatiable hunger for pixelated information is enough to put a bulimic Pac-Man to shame

~Dean Cavanagh

Your mind gives birth to an action and, whether you like it or not, it will never let it become orphaned

~Dean Cavanagh

The "result" of life is death, so when you create, the importance is not on the result but on the process of creating in and of itself.

~Dean Cavanagh

The yawn of the void. A siren call for the unimaginative

~Dean Cavanagh

Time Is Speeding Up In Relation To Corruption. Hold On Tight.

~Dean Cavanagh

Our minds are big enough to contemplate the cosmos but small enough to care about who wins an Oscar

~Dean Cavanagh

Neo-Liberalism promised us a Global Village and gave us a Potemkin Village.
