Forgive me for noting that conservatives seem to believe that the rich will work harder if we give them more, and the poor will work harder if we give them less.

~E. J. Dionne

A nation that hates politics will not long survive as a democracy.

~E. J. Dionne

The worst kind of job to have is a job with lots of responsibility and very little power.

~E. J. Dionne

At the heart of my argument is the view that religious faith, far from being inevitably on the side of the status quo, should on principle hold this world to higher standards.

~E. J. Dionne

It sure looks like [Vladimir] Putin did this [hack DNS site]. And we all need to take this seriously.

~E. J. Dionne

The Russians stole from the Democratic National Committee with hacking.

~E. J. Dionne

The closeness [of Rex Tillerson] to [Vladimir] Putin will be one of the unifying issues between the Republican critics and Democratic critics.

~E. J. Dionne

When [Republicans] say they can reduce taxes and trim deficits at the same time, they are either deluded or deceptive, and they are playing voters for fools.

~E. J. Dionne

Politically, Donald Trump doesn't seem to care much about what he says. He gauges the effect. Sometimes, in the middle of a speech, he will change his direction if the audience doesn't like him.

~E. J. Dionne

The Democrats want to celebrate their successes but don't want to look out of touch with the people who haven't risen much in the last decade or so really.

~E. J. Dionne

In the Trump language, words change their meaning day by day depending on his own political needs.

~E. J. Dionne

I wish we had more [Dwight] Eisenhower Republicans in this [Donald]Trump cabinet.

~E. J. Dionne

We have pursued public policies that kind of hold the recovery back, but the private economy is really starting to roll.

~E. J. Dionne

I think Donald Trump simply needs to make himself look less bigoted, less dangerous, more comfortable to people.

~E. J. Dionne

The money matters. And secret money is corrupting, secret money is dangerous, secret money leads to scandal.

~E. J. Dionne

Common decency is a core part of who people are.

~E. J. Dionne

What is working in the economy is a natural comeback plus some effects of the policies we've been following. But I'm sort of worried about the long term effects.
