I'd like to be the ambassador to the Bahamas.

~Eleanor Mondale

Don't forget to vote for Bill Clinton and Al Gore. Stay home if you're voting for Dole.

~Eleanor Mondale

I make bad choices. I've got such dodgy tastes in men.

~Eleanor Mondale

I didn't want to get married. What I knew of most men was something I didn't want any part of. I just wanted to work on my career.

~Eleanor Mondale

I've always considered myself a physical person. I don't call myself a farm girl, but I did spend a lot of years shoveling manure and throwing hay, because I worked to pay most of my riding expenses.

~Eleanor Mondale

The biggest hurdle is figuring out who your friends are. Your real friends.

~Eleanor Mondale

How rude would I be, walking around and saying: 'Hello. I'm Eleanor Mondale. My father was vice president of the United States. Treat me differently.

~Eleanor Mondale

We're Norwegians. You know, the Vikings. My deadlift was 310 pounds. I mean, I was very, very strong - and I didn't take steroids. I did it all on my own.

~Eleanor Mondale

When you're nearing 35, going, 'Hey Dad, I can't make these payments,' just isn't cool.

~Eleanor Mondale

I like being involved in the lighter side of journalism because it serves a purpose, and it's fun. And I can keep my opinions off camera if I want.

~Eleanor Mondale

I didn't like not having work and not having people return my calls.

~Eleanor Mondale

There was a point when I almost gave up. I couldn't feed myself. I couldn't feed my pets.

~Eleanor Mondale

I like fashion. I like being in shape. I like to look nice and I like to make money, but I don't think that's the most, No. 1, important thing.

~Eleanor Mondale

I have to prove myself five times over.

~Eleanor Mondale

Actually, I'm 130, but 125 is what I put on my resume, because that's what I look like I weigh.

~Eleanor Mondale

I wanted to be an actress. I think it had a lot to do with being a kid and watching how every time my dad would stand up to talk people would applaud... that was pretty cool.

~Eleanor Mondale

I have more self-confidence than I did when I was in my 20s.

~Eleanor Mondale

My parents are always supportive of anything their kids do. They point out the pros and cons, but they let you make your own decisions, and when it's bad they stick by you.
