Technical problems are like gremlins. They come and go.

~Eric Fellner

Something like small English films were in vogue you had something like The Crying Game and everyone piled into London and wanted to make small English movies.

~Eric Fellner

Oh, IMDB, yeah; there's a few things on there that are TV, they're not film, some things they think we did that we didn't. There's a few inaccuracies in there. It's terrifying though, isn't it?

~Eric Fellner

In terms of putting the cast together, no problems. You know, the only problem always is just price-point. Our ambitions as we get older, all of us, is to try and do more.

~Eric Fellner

That middle ground of films used to be 70, 80, 90, 100; now it's like anything over 20 or under 140, the middle ground has become this huge area where they don't really want to be.

~Eric Fellner

Making movies is like herding cats.

~Eric Fellner

The writer Richard Curtis is a genius.

~Eric Fellner

I love all my Wrights and it would be impossible to say which one I love more, but if you really pushed me, it would be Joe.

~Eric Fellner

For us in England, the relative value of the pound against the dollar, that has a huge impact on how easy it is to get our films made in the U.K.

~Eric Fellner

Do we have good writers, producers and actors in the U.K.? Yes we do.

~Eric Fellner

The idea that the Tony committee and the New York theater community as a whole have embraced Billy Elliot is very, very exciting.

~Eric Fellner

But in the former, those movie sets that you've been on like that, even if they're huge movies and most of its being spent in special effects afterwards, I think that's the way that we're going.

~Eric Fellner

The UK needs more first class studio space to encourage the growth of the film and TV sector.

~Eric Fellner

So that is new in terms of where I've seen the shifts. Otherwise, it's all about taste and taste just keeps going round and round and round.
