I didn't want make art about the internet at all. It's a really hard subject to take on and I did not set out to do that. But, it was real and it was what was happening.

~Erika M. Anderson

I like messing up the song, doing some improvisation. And I like running around the room with the mic.

~Erika M. Anderson

I love karaoke; you have to wail when you do karaoke.

~Erika M. Anderson

Back in the day, no one had digital cameras. They took these pictures of me, got them developed, and then mailed them to me.

~Erika M. Anderson

It was really bizarre for me to go from being a very private and obscure person and then to be in any way on the internet - like having my picture or videos online.

~Erika M. Anderson

What would I reclaim America as? I do want it to be a diverse country.

~Erika M. Anderson

Writing music is always really helpful for me. It always reveals to me how I am feeling.

~Erika M. Anderson

When I like a musician I want to see a picture or a video of them.

~Erika M. Anderson

I'd been used to this idea of destructive performance art instead of a slick, good-sounding show. So, I became frustrated as I felt I'd been doing the shows wrong. That sucked.

~Erika M. Anderson

Maybe some people are better off in obscurity than trying to keep on expanding.

~Erika M. Anderson

I don't want to be in my 'interview zone' mode. I've been doing a lot of interviews and I'm very self-aware of how I'm coming across.

~Erika M. Anderson

I think. I do know that I like connecting to people who really resonate with the music. I guess I almost wish I could just connect with the people who really need it.

~Erika M. Anderson

I've been really lucky. People have been nice to me on the internet. That's the reason why I couldn't figure out what was wrong with me.

~Erika M. Anderson

I'm a Scandinavian Midwest girl who doesn't always know what's going on in herself emotionally, which is why I make music in order to figure it out.

~Erika M. Anderson

I was worried that I didn't have as many Facebook 'likes' as another musician. You can almost feel like a failure if you aren't building your fame in that way.
