Water is the most purifying element. It's always involved in baptisms, healings, that kind of work.

~Eyvind Kang

I believe that music should be grown on trees, to be plucked like a fruit without the extravagance of harvest.

~Eyvind Kang

Learning how to listen to others and how to listen to your own thoughts is the ultimate process.

~Eyvind Kang

What happens in our consciousness and minds and bodies is also happening on earth. The more we pollute the earth, for example, the sicker we are.

~Eyvind Kang

Working with the Latin language is pretty powerful. Working with a language that is not spoken vernacularly is intense.

~Eyvind Kang

I woke up and was walking on a mountain, and I thought, "What's the worst thing that humans could do to the planet? Make it uninhabitable for humans and kill wildlife."

~Eyvind Kang

Who approaches collaboration with agenda in terms of content? The agenda is only in terms of process, which is generosity, listening, careful thinking.

~Eyvind Kang

When you sit with people and you can hear what they're hearing, that's quite interesting.

~Eyvind Kang

All these emotions are coming from one thing - sound. It's not coming from your experiences in life, your childhood. It's related to those things, but it's being triggered by the sound.

~Eyvind Kang

I love the pleasure of finding the same truth in two different places. It has a lot to do with a soul.

~Eyvind Kang

The most appealing part is the feeling of learning something true - the pleasure of a truth. For me, that's mostly found in philosophical literature at the moment.

~Eyvind Kang

I love the appropriateness of making a dogmatic statement. I support that, but that is a different level of the individual consciousness than was the source of our music.

~Eyvind Kang

There is no guiding principle, because the work that is created in collaborations should be created from its own principles.

~Eyvind Kang

I don't like to treat words and sounds like objects. You have to penetrate deeply into their meaning.

~Eyvind Kang

Even if you're a genius and you invent your own language, it doesn't become a language until there are people using it.

~Eyvind Kang

There is some music that's truly dark, in that it's dark in terms of hopeless. But then again, the act of hope is just making the work of art.
