What I loathe is the multi-national conglomerates who must take responsibility for the degradation and pollution of so much of our landscape with their factory farming and greed.

~Fay Godwin

I like photographs which leave something to the imagination.

~Fay Godwin

I hardly teach. It's more like a gathering of minds looking at one subject and learning from each other. I enjoy the process.

~Fay Godwin

Look at lots of exhibitions and books, and don't get hung up on cameras and technical things. Photography is about images.

~Fay Godwin

But I was, and still am, an avid reader and so when I first started I chose to photograph many of the great writers in this country to try and earn a living.

~Fay Godwin

You can't expect to take a definitive image in half an hour. It takes days, often years.

~Fay Godwin

I don't get wrapped up in technique and the like.

~Fay Godwin

I'm not faithful to one particular medium, and it's what I try to teach to people who work with me.

~Fay Godwin

The viewer must bring their own view to a photograph.

~Fay Godwin

Maybe black and white is the best medium for landscapes, I don't know.

~Fay Godwin

I have always been a very keen walker, though, and I often took a camera with me on my walks.

~Fay Godwin

I had been working in colour for ten years or so and looked at digital and liked the possibilities it gave me.

~Fay Godwin

It was 1966 by the time I started taking pictures seriously and books, newspapers and magazines of the time were full of great pictures that helped to inspire me.

~Fay Godwin

I've been working with the land for most of my life; walking it and photographing it. And I love it to bits.

~Fay Godwin

I have always loved reading, so was interested in the literary world, and took many literary portraits.
