I would like to thank the incomparable William H. Macy for taking a chunky 22-year-old with a bad perm and glasses out into a cow pasture and kissing me and making me his wife.

~Felicity Huffman

I can't tell you what a pleasure it is to just put my hair under a wig cap and slap on a wig that's already done. It's dress up for your hair!

~Felicity Huffman

I look OK. I look better in person than I do on film, which is bad because it's how I make my living, but I am not a beauty and on balance I am glad.

~Felicity Huffman

As an actress, I was never thin enough, never pretty enough. My boobs weren't big enough.

~Felicity Huffman

Congress is attempting to eviscerate women's health care. Like many women across America, I am outraged.

~Felicity Huffman

I love actors. I married one. OK, I married a fantastic one.

~Felicity Huffman

As you grow up and get educated in the business, you go from, 'I want to do movies' to 'I want to work. In whatever.

~Felicity Huffman

A win for one is a win for all - and I'm not just saying that because Dumas did.

~Felicity Huffman

Motherhood has been an exercise in guilt.

~Felicity Huffman

Beauty can make you powerful in a way that isn't good for you. Being OK is better for the person I have become.

~Felicity Huffman

Thankfully, President Obama has stood firmly behind women's health care issues by supporting coverage for contraception and reaffirming commitment to organizations like Planned Parenthood.

~Felicity Huffman

I go to bed when the kids go to bed because I get up when they get up at 5.

~Felicity Huffman

I don't know what the f--k I'm talking about with parenting.

~Felicity Huffman

Right after 'Desperate' sold to China, we were the most watched show around the world at the time. That's really something great to be a part of.

~Felicity Huffman

On marriage: You sort of stumble along and reconnect and lose each other and reconnect again.

~Felicity Huffman

I think I've always had a 40-year-old body, and now that I'm actually there I'm like, 'Hey, pretty good, huh?'
